EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

When new judgeships for district courts and/or new divisions of district court are established, state general fund expenditures will increase. The number of new judgeships established and the number of parishes within the judicial district will determine the impact on expenditures in a given year.

The annual state general fund salary (as of July 1, 2005) for a judge at the district, family, juvenile court level is $95,580. The annual cost of related benefits is $27,393 (retirement expense, medicare liability, and health insurance). For office and travel expenses, judges are allotted $5,600 per fiscal year in a single parish district, $6,800 for a district with two parishes, and $8,000 for a three parish district. The total annual expense funded by the state general fund for a new judgeship in a single parish district is $128,573 per fiscal year, $129,773 per fiscal year for a district with two parishes, and $130,973 per fiscal year for a three parish district.
