DIGEST

Present constitution provides for an automatic pardon for a first offender never previously convicted of a felony upon completion of his sentence, without a recommendation of the Board of Pardons and without action by the governor.

Proposed constitutional amendment provides an automatic pardon only for a first offender convicted on a non-violent crime committed while he was under the age of twenty-one. The other conditions would still apply.

(Amends Const. Art. IV, Sec. 5(E)(1))
