

Present law provides that children who are deaf or hard of hearing are entitled to meet and associate with their peers.

Proposed law requires public schools to provide children who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind opportunities to meet and associate with their peers in the school environment and during school sponsored activities.

Present law provides that children who are deaf or hard of hearing are entitled to qualified teachers, interpreters, and resource personnel who communicate effectively with each child in that child's mode of communication.

Proposed law essentially retains present law, but requires public schools to provide children who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind access to such teachers, interpreters, and resource personnel.

Proposed law adds a provision to the Deaf Child's Bill of Rights that requires public schools to include a communication plan in the Individualized Education Program of every student with an exceptionality who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind. Further provides that, where appropriate, public schools shall include a communication plan in the Individual Accommodation Plan for a student who is deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind.

Present law provides that children who are deaf or hard of hearing are entitled to placement best suited to each child's individual needs, including but not limited to social, emotional, and cultural needs, with consideration for the child's age, degree of hearing loss, academic level, mode of communication, style of learning, motivational level, and amount of family support.

Proposed law essentially retains present law, but requires public schools to provide such placement to children who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind and to consider the type of hearing loss as well as the degree.

Present law provides that children who are deaf or hard of hearing are entitled to individual considerations for free, appropriate education across a full spectrum of educational programs.

Proposed law essentially retains present law, but requires public schools to provide such considerations to children who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind.

Present law provides that children who are deaf or hard of hearing are entitled to full support services provided by qualified professionals in their educational settings.

Proposed law retains present law, but requires public schools to provide such services to children who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind. Further requires the state Department of Education to work with local education agencies to ensure technical assistance is available to support public school governing authorities in meeting the needs of children who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind.

Present law provides that children who are deaf or hard of hearing are entitled to full access to all programs in their educational settings.

Proposed law essentially retains present law, but requires public schools to provide such access to children who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind.

Present law provides that deaf and hard of hearing children are entitled to have the public fully informed concerning medical, cultural, and linguistic issues of deafness and hearing loss.

Proposed law provides that children who are deaf-blind are entitled to have the public fully informed concerning medical, cultural, and linguistic issues of individuals who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind.

Present law provides that children who are deaf or hard of hearing are entitled, where appropriate, to have deaf and hard of hearing adults directly involved in determining the extent, content, and purpose of all programs that affect their education.

Proposed law requires public school, where possible, to have deaf and hard of hearing adults directly involved in determining the extent, content, and purpose of all programs that affect the education of children who are deaf, hard of hearing, or deaf-blind.

Proposed law requires public school governing authorities to comply with the provisions of proposed law, in accordance with applicable state and federal law, policy, and regulation.

Proposed law specifies that nothing in proposed law shall be construed to create a right of action not currently provided for in state or federal law or regulation on behalf of an individual student or a class of students for the failure of a particular public school or public school governing authority to comply with any provision of proposed law or to prevent the parent or legal guardian of a student from filing a complaint as provided in applicable state or federal law or regulation.

Proposed law provides that charter schools are subject to the Deaf Child's Bill of Rights.

Effective August 1, 2015.
