

RÉSUMÉ DIGEST

ACT 241 (SB 33)

2015 Regular Session

Walsworth

Prior law placed the office of telecommunications management (OTM) within the division of administration (DOA).

New law merges OTM with the office of technology services (OTS) under the supervision and control of the state chief information officer.

Prior law placed the uniform consolidated mailroom for all state agencies under the control of DOA and the commissioner of administration.

New law moves uniform consolidated mailroom operations to OTS and control to the state chief information officer.

New law excludes public postsecondary institutions of education, their management boards, and the Board of Regents unless the state chief information officer can verify that inclusion per contracted service would result in savings to the institution or board.

Prior law required the executive branch purchase all requirements of printing and engraving from a central purchasing agency with the chief procurement officer having authority.

New law designates OTS as the vendor for all printing and engraving purchases made by the executive branch with the chief information officer having authority.

Effective August 1, 2015.
