EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental expenditures as a result of this measure.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure alone. The deduction for federal taxes paid is currently provided in statute, for both individual and corporate income tax, consistent with current constitutional provisions. This constitutional amendment does not change those statutory provisions, and does not prohibit a federal tax deduction for corporate income tax. Specific statutory changes would be required to change those provisions. This amendment does not itself provide them.
