DIGEST

Present law provides that certain records are to be kept by wholesale and retail dealers who sell reptiles and amphibians.

Proposed law requires a written acknowledgment by each consumer who purchases an iguana that, prior to the sale of the iguana to a consumer, the retailer advised the consumer, in writing, all of the following:

- A. The primary care needed for the iguana, including food and appropriate habitat.
- B. A warning that the iguana can carry salmonella.
- C. That the iguana will grow substantially in size and will be more difficult to care for properly.

Effective August 15, 2010.
