DIGEST

Morrell (SB 381)

Present law defines crime against nature as:

- (1) The unnatural carnal copulation by a human being with another of the same sex or opposite sex or with an animal, except that anal sexual intercourse between two human beings will not be deemed as a crime against nature when done under any of the circumstances described in present law. Emission is not necessary; and, when committed by a human being with another, the use of the genital organ of one of the offenders of whatever sex is sufficient to constitute the crime.
- (2) The solicitation by a human being of another with the intent to engage in any unnatural carnal copulation for compensation.

Proposed law defines crime against nature as:

The unnatural carnal copulation by a human being with another of the same sex or opposite sex or with an animal, except that anal sexual intercourse between two human beings will not be deemed as a crime against nature when done under any of the circumstances described in present law. Emission is not necessary; and, when committed by a human being with another, the use of the genital organ of one of the offenders of whatever sex is sufficient to constitute the crime.

Proposed law creates the crime against nature by solicitation.

Proposed law defines the crime against nature as the solicitation by a human being of another with the intent to engage in any unnatural carnal copulation for compensation.

Proposed law provides that whoever commits the crime against nature by solicitation will be fined not more than $500 dollars, imprisoned for not more than six months, or both.

Effective August 15, 2010.
