4 of persons protecting the right of religion; to provide for definitions; and to provide
5 for related matters.

6 Be it enacted by the Legislature of Louisiana:

7 Section 1. R.S. 13:5233.2 is hereby enacted to read as follows:

8 §5233.2. Protection of freedom of worship; limitation of liability

9 A. The Legislature of Louisiana finds that houses of worship are private 10 property dedicated to the free exercise of religion, that religious assemblies are 11 protected by the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of Louisiana,
12 and that the right to exclude disruptive and potentially violent individuals may be
13 necessary to facilitate the free exercise of religion. The Legislature of Louisiana 14 further finds that clarification of existing statutory authority is in the furtherance of 15 justice and the free exercise of religion.

16 B. Any religious leader, authorized security team member, or person
17 lawfully present and permitted on the premises of a house of worship may request
18 that a person leave the premises if the person is committing criminal trespass
19 pursuant to R.S. 14:63 or is engaged in a substantial disruption. Such request shall 20 constitute notice for purposes of criminal trespass law.

1 C. A lawfully permitted person may employ reasonable force when used in
2 accordance with the following:

3 (1) To prevent a forcible offense against a person lawfully present on the 4 premises.

8 D.(1) When force or violence is used to prevent criminal trespass or the 9 disruption of worship services, or any other activity at the house of worship, the 10 lawfully permitted person is limited to the use of force reasonably necessary to 11 terminate the trespass or substantial disruption, or force proportionate to that used
12 by the person committing the trespass or causing the disruption.

13 (2) Nothing in this Section shall be construed to authorize the use of deadly
14 force except where otherwise permitted by law for purposes of self-defense.

15 E.(1) A lawfully permitted person on the premises who uses reasonable,
16 limited, and necessary force pursuant to this Section and the organization which 17 owns or leases the premises for religious activities shall not be liable in tort to any 18 person for the use of such force.

19 (2) A request made pursuant to Subsection B of this Section and the 20 continued presence of a person who is trespassing shall constitute an affirmative 21 defense for any arrest or civil action arising out of the use of reasonable and 22 necessary force to terminate a criminal trespass.

23 (3) The provisions of this Subsection do not apply if any of the following
24 occur:

25 (a) The use of force was grossly disproportionate to the force used by the 26 criminal trespasser.

27 (b) Deadly force was used unlawfully and unnecessarily.

28 (c) The person who used force was engaged in any unlawful conduct.

1 (4) In any criminal or civil action arising from the use of force by a lawfully
2 present person against a trespasser pursuant to this Section, whether the defendant
3 is an individual or the religious organization, upon motion, the court shall conduct
4 a pretrial immunity hearing. If immunity is established by a preponderance of the 5 evidence, the action shall be dismissed.

6 F. Nothing in this Section shall be construed to do any of the following:

7 (1) Prohibit the lawful, peaceful protest outside the premises of a house of 8 worship that does not obstruct access to the premises.

9 (2) Supercede any other provision of law related to self-defense.

10 (3) Limit the authority of law enforcement.

11 (4) Limit constitutional free speech or free exercise of religion.

Abstract: Provides immunity to religious leaders and persons lawfully present at houses of worship who use appropriate force to exclude intruders engaged in trespass or substantial disruption of activities.

Present law allows the use of force to exclude trespassers who refuse to leave certain private property.

Proposed law retains present law and adds that private property rights extend to houses of worship and to persons who are lawfully present at houses of worship, including the right to exclude people who trespass or cause substantial disruption.

Proposed law describes when the use of force is appropriate and provides immunity from liability when use of force is appropriately made.

Proposed law prohibits the use of deadly force except as otherwise provided in present law related to self-defense.

Proposed law provides for an immunity hearing in cases against a religious leader or lawfully present person at a house of worship who uses force.

Proposed law allows for peaceful protest not on house of worship property that does not impede access to or from the house of worship by persons lawfully present.

Proposed law provides definitions for "house of worship", "religious leader", and "substantial disruption".

Proposed law adds houses of worship to the list of places where people can use force or violence to prevent unlawful entry by another person.
