EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental expenditures as a result of this measure. Proposed law provides that if an excavator or demolisher receives funding from the Broadband Equity, Access, and Deployment (BEAD) Program and damages an underground utility, they shall be responsible for the repair or the cost of the repair before final reimbursement from the Office of Broadband Development and Connectivity. Under current law, excavators and demolishers are generally held liable for any damage if they fail to follow the proper safety procedures and damage is not a result of improper maintenance by the utility company. Proposed law restricts the distribution of BEAD funding from the Office of Broadband Development and Connectivity until the excavator or demolisher repairs the damage or pays for the cost of the repairs.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure.
