EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental expenditures as a result of this measure.

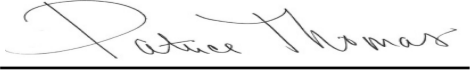

The proposed law allows an arresting law enforcement agency to hold an offender (presumed to be under the influence of alcoholic beverages) in custody, following an arrest for operating a vehicle while impaired, until a safe release is feasible. While the proposed law may result in an indeterminable increase in workload to Sheriffs and local jails for holding those arrested for operating a vehicle while impaired until a safe release is feasible, there is nothing to suggest that the degree of workload will increase such that any substantial impact to expenditures will occur.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure.
