

RÉSUMÉ DIGEST

HR 196

2026 Regular Session

Owen

Establishes a special study committee to consist of four members within the House of Representatives, charged with evaluating and formulating recommendations regarding the implications of fallen trees on residential properties, including their effects on property values, disruptions to daily life, and the property insurance market. Stipulates that the Speaker of the House of Representatives will call the inaugural meeting of the study committee, at which the members will elect a chairman.