Realigns energy-related programs by moving the Louisiana Geological Survey under the Louisiana State University Energy Institute

Proposed law moves the Louisiana Geological Survey from its current location at LSU into the LSU Energy Institute and specifies the survey's responsibilities for coordinating with the Office of Technology Services, the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, the Department of Conservation and Energy, and the Natural Resources Commission regarding the storage and maintenance of state geologic data. Proposed law removes the requirement for the Office of State Resources within the Department of Conservation and Energy to work cooperatively with the Center for Energy Studies at LSU and instead requires cooperation with the Energy Institute at LSU. Proposed law authorizes the use of cooperative endeavor agreements to implement proposed law.
