WHEREAS, the Ten Commandments have provided an extraordinary influence upon the morals, ethics, ideas and the very ideal of a just society, where people live and obey the civil and criminal laws of this great nation; and

WHEREAS, neighboring states, such as Texas and Oklahoma, have successfully fought efforts to ban the display of the Ten Commandments on the grounds of their state capitols by seeking legal relief from high courts, including the United States Supreme Court; and

WHEREAS, there is currently pending legislation filed in the 2011 Regular Session

1 of the Legislature that would provide for installation of a Ten Commandments monument
