

Existing law provides that persons continued or remaining in custody pursuant to an arrest made without a warrant shall be entitled to a determination of probable cause within 48 hours of arrest.

Existing law provides that the failure to conduct the hearing results in release of the defendant on his own recognizance.

New law retains existing law.

New law shall not preclude the defendant's rearrest and resetting of bond for the same offense or offenses upon the issuance of an arrest warrant based upon a finding of probable cause by a magistrate.

Effective August 15, 2011.
