Prior law provided for a monthly supervision fee of not less than $50 nor more than $100 when the court places the defendant on supervised probation.

Existing law provides that the fee is payable to DPS&C or such other probation office, agency, or officer as designated by the court, to defray the cost of supervision.

New law retains existing law and increases the monthly fee to not less than $60 nor more than $110.

Prior law provided that, as a condition of parole, the Board of Parole may establish fees payable to the Board of Parole to defray the cost of supervision in an amount determined by the board based upon the offender's ability to pay.

New law changes prior law to establish the fee as a monthly fee not to exceed $63 payable to DPS&C and provides that the determination of the ability to pay shall be made by the Board of Parole.

Effective August 15, 2011.
