Analyst: Deborah Vivien

Removes the Jan. 1, 2015, sunset date for issuance of sound recording investor tax credits and provides a threshold for Louisiana residents Current law allows a refundable income tax credit paid in the manner of a rebate of 25% of any investment over $15,000 in certified production and infrastructure projects related to sound recording. The program cost is capped at $3 M per year. The credit expires January 1, 2015.

Proposed law makes the credit permanent and lowers the credit threshold for Louisiana residents from $15,000 to $5,000.

EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental expenditures as a result of this measure.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

The bill lowers the threshhold at which the 25% investment credit can be attained to $5,000 for LA residents. Currently, the threshhold is $15,000 for all investors. Program participants are currently allowed to bundle investments to reach the threshhold. This bill allows a smaller bundle for those residing in LA to receive the credit, which may attract more investors as a 25% rebate that would now be available to a much smaller investment. The bill does not specify how a LA resident will be determined or any certain measures to insure that non-residents cannot co-mingle investments to avoid the higher threshhold applicable to them.

This bill will also make permanent the program which now expires on 1/1/15. The program has been available since 2006 but has never reached the cost cap. In FY 11, the program cost was about $1.1 M and in FY 12 about $200,000. Total exposure of $3 M per year in SGF will be extended indefinitely by this bill. However, based on historical participation, the annual cost will not reach this level, unless lowering the threshold for LA residents leads to a significantly higher participation rate.
